It is stated in the official report that 702 persons died between the 14th and 17th of August at Bokhara of heat. and the figures, it is expressly added. do not include children. If this amazing calamity be not due to any atmospheric violence, as a Bad-i-simoon, for example, it is probably unequaled in authentic records. But when we think of the agony, the horrible wretchedness in which the whole population must have been living, it may well seem that those who found escape in death are not to be pitied. The horror of heat is unknown to us, or, indeed, to any part of Europe, though Naples and Athens are desperately trying sometimes. But to the native of Scinde, Central Asia, the shores of the Persian Gulf, the sun of Greece is but a trifle. The utter helplessness of man under this infliction adds horror to his sufferings.

There is no hope and no resource when the red-hot air penetrates to those underground chambers in which the summer is passed in Central Asia-"The inhabitants," we learn, "are shutting themselves up to escape"probably closing all the apertures of their subterranean abodes, except those absolutely necessary for ventilation. The air down below, under such circumstances, can not be imagined by one who has not had a touch of experience. Houses of good class are solidly constructed under ground, with chambers and doors and corridors, but the mass of the people inhabit big holes, roofed over, with no kind of permanent convenience. Every winter the frost and snow and rain play mischief with these rough pits, and the damage is not always nor often repaired by the following summer. Fancy thousands of Mongols in these dens, pursuing their filthy habits in semi-darkness, suffering the awful torment of heat, children wailing, adults raving, always in want of water and generally of food, in an atmosphere beyond conceiving. That is the picture which those few lines of telegram suggest to readers who know. -London Standard.

An Effective Stage Pistol.

Stage murders with guns and pistols are often ridiculous farces. The blackhearted villain fires at the flies and the persecuted hero facing him drops "dead." To escape the ridiculous in this line of stage effort a new weapon has been invented by M. Phillippe, secretary of the Bouffes Parisiennes, Paris. It contains a long spiral spring. which carries a needle at the end. The piece is loaded by compressing the spring, which is retained by a simple mechanism, and inserting in the muzzle a cork, which contains a charge of fulminating mercury. On pulling the trigger the spring is released and the needle strikes the fulminate, which explodes, blowing the cork into dust. It is said that these guns can be leveled directly at any person and discharged without risk.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Character in Typewriting. According to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, the use of the typewriter does not baffle the writing expert. Men and women who use typewriters show nearly as much individuality in their work as they would do if they used a pen. It is harder to de-tect, but that is all the difference. Any business man who is used to reading correspondence from concerns which employ several typewriters can tell at a giance which one of the half-dozen wrote the letters he receives. Signs of carelessness, haste, ignorance of punctuation or the pro-fuse use of punctuation marks, a wide or narrow margin around the writing, some peculiarity in capitalizing-all these things carry meaning to the expert examining typewritten copy. But the personal characteristics of the typewriter are better concealed by the typewriter than the person using the pen. Nervousness can be dis-covered, but the qualities depending upon perament can not. You can tell a ful, despondent, generous, close fisted man by the work he does with a pen, but when he does it with the machine he hides him

The Child's Denomination.

While loading sugar on our boat on Sunday recently at a Louisiana plantation, says a writer in the Cincinnati Commercial-Ga zette, some of the passengers strolled back toward the settlement and went into church just as a couple had taken their child in for baptism. The old colored preacher, noticing the large crowd of white visitors, extended them a cordial welcome and asked all to be seated; then, turning to the couple before him, asked:

"Ob what denomination am dis chile?"
"Bah?" said the young father, evidently perplexed by the word denomination.
"I axed yo' ob what denomination de chile war," repeated the minister, a little

The parents looked at each other in evident confusion for a moment; then the father stammered out: "I-we-doesn't know what yo' means by denomination,

"Huh! yo' don't!" replied the preacher, scornfully; "well, den, I'll simplify is 'cordin' to yo' ign'ance, so yo' kin understand it; am de chile a boy or gal chile?"

Consistency Is Rure.

A man will unblushingly comb his back hair over a bald spot on the top of his head, and yet expect a grocer to put his smallest apples in the top layer of a box.
